EXCEL Group Acquires Davies Engineering, Inc.

Dave Roberts, CEO of Excel Group, has announced the acquisition of Davies Engineering, Inc., a local firm based in Ascension Parish.

Davies Engineering has been providing engineering services to the chemical, petro chemical, petroleum refining and power generation industries since 1971. Davies currently has projects in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi.

Excel provides engineering, construction, maintenance and fabrication services for its customers in the manufacturing, refining, petro chemical, chemical, power generation and pulp and paper industries. Excel's home office is in Prairieville, Louisiana. Excel also has offices in Texas, Kentucky and St. Croix USVI.

"The acquisition of Davies Engineering will expand our range of capabilities allowing Davies to provide turnkey Engineering, Procurement and Construction services on small to medium size projects", said Roberts. "Davies has a talented mix of engineers and designers with extensive experience in civil, mechanical, piping, electrical and instrumentation design and project services. We are also very pleased that Tom Davies and Gary Laiche will continue to play key roles in the management of the firm." Tom Davies said the employees are very excited about the many opportunities that will come into play with the association between Excel and Davies Engineering.
